China and the Bean.

The bean plays an important part in Chinese domestic economy, and, according to East and West News, one of the specially desired qualifications of the Chinese matron, throughout the northern provinces, is her ability to concoct from beans—green, black and yellow—those staple dishes that the Chinese know as tsu fei and hang fen.

The bean seldom appears on the Chinese table whole; it is not considered as fit for food until it has been reduced to its essences and put up in the form of bean curd, or bean gelatin, which are for sale in every roadside foodshop of northern China.

The art of producing these nourishing foods, which are the meat of the poor, is to the rural Chinese woman what the making of butter, cheese and jam is to the Occidental housewife. In the large cities bean manipulation of that sort is a craft and a commercial activity, just as the making of jam and butter is in the large cities of the West; but it can hardly be called an industry, since it is still quite without organization. The beans must be crushed, soaked, baked, boiled, strained, and so on, before the essences appear.

What Every Poet Knows.

The man of prosaic mind thinks that composition is a matter of so arranging words that they shall convey a meaning that is the sum of their separate meanings. But the poet knows better. He knows that it is a matter of so ordering them that they shall suggest verbally inexpressible meanings between the lines; that they shall, quite liberally, "set spirits to dancing from sentence to sentence, flashes of intellectual electricity to leaping from page to page, faces to peeping forth at the reader from behind the letters like children from behind tree-trunks."—Harold Goddard, in Atlantic.

Driest Place on Earth.

The city of Payta, in Peru, is the driest place on earth. It is within five degrees of the equator, and the inhabitants see a shower on the average of about once in two years. Frequently, six or eight years elapse between rainfalls, but when a shower does come, it lasts usually from 12 to 20 hours. Strange as it may seem, there are seven species of annual plants which exist in this place, and the natives raise a kind of cotton with extra-long roots, which go down far into the soil and obtain moisture from the bed of an old, dried-up river which once ran through Payta.

BRITISH WOUNDED PASS THROUGH FRENCH LINE

During the fiercest of the fighting in a battle in France British wounded on the way to hospitals were carried past the lines of the French. As he passes the trenches filled with machine gunners in action this wounded Tommy, interested, has raised his head to watch his French cousins help hold the Hun. Away at the rear in the woods cavalry horses can be seen corralled while their riders wait the command to advance.

Does Your Life Work Mean Anything to You?

You farmers who have worked hard—and no one works harder—to get together your property, what does it mean to you?

Your property—your farm and buildings, your crops, your stock, your farm implements and, too, your home—all of these represent years and years of work that you have done.

Everything that you enjoy as the result of your work comes to you and stays with you because the heroic soldiers and sailors of Uncle Sam are standing between you and the bloodthirsty, murderous Hun.

To keep the Hun away from you, Uncle Sam does not ask you to GIVE even a single penny. He simply asks you to LEND him your money at good interest and he guarantees on his word of honor—a word that has never been broken—to pay back every penny you lend.

What is your answer?

Have you bought all the LIBERTY BONDS you possibly can?
